

Dear colleagues and friends,

We hope this finds you well.

Today we would like to provide you with information concerning the choosing of the events you would like to take part in. Some of you may have noticed that since last week the program of the Conference is available online. A lot of progress has been made in regards to preparing the Conference!

We wish you a lot of fun and inspiration exploring the wide range of workshops and lectures and making your choices.

We have prepared a form, in which you can enter your 1st, 2nd and 3rd choice for the individual timeslots.

Please choose your workshops and lectures and send the form back till April, 15, 2018.

The keynote speeches will be held in the big hall, where all participants will have space. Hence, there is no need to make a choice here.

Peter Levine's live demo and the subsequent discussion with Marianne Bentzen and Stephen Porges will take place on Saturday at 4pm – 7pm. Despite our careful checking a typo was made and a wrong time was given somewhere in the program.

Concerning the other two questions on the form:

Please let us know about your needs and requirements on the subject of translating. Ticking the respective box on the form will support the planning for needed technical supplies (no of headsets, infrared receiver etc.).

You may wish for some personal backing during the Conference. For this, we have asked people to be a supporting buddy for you. Please tick the box if desired.

Last but not least, the hotel management has asked us to inform you about the following: As dinner is not included in the Conference fee, you may decide to go out and have dinner in Potsdam. If not, the hotel requests you to inform them in advance, preferably when making reservations, so they can prepare for the corresponding number of guests.

Thank you for your time.

Best Season Greetings from the Conference Team!
